Zika Virus and Donor Eggs

Zika has been a hot topic in the United States lately. Although there have been no cases of Zika being transmitted from a donor egg to a recipient or their offspring, the FDA has enacted new guidelines that does not allow egg donation from donors in Zika areas. These Zika areas include Mexico and most of the Caribbean, Central and

- Egg Survival 91.8%
- Clinical Pregnancy per thawing 48.4%*
- Embryos Transferred to each Patient (Many eSETs) 1.41
- Transferable or Freezable Embryos for each Cohort of Eggs 2.61

* Clinical pregnancy is based on heartbeats and is per thawing, not per Cohort of Eggs

The World Egg Bank Visits Texas!

This August, TWEB sent our Laboratory Manager and Client Representative to Texas to introduce ourselves to IVF clinics across Texas. This "Texas Roadshow" included The Center for Reproductive Medicine in Houston, Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas, and the Fertility Center of Dallas. These trips were for the purpose of introducing clinics who have never warmed TWEB ova to the many benefits of recommending our donor eggs to their patients and how we can benefit their clinics.

We appreciate the gracious hospitality of all the clinics and were impressed with the tours we received upon arrival. It was also helpful to experience this one on one visit as it gives us a better idea of the individual clinic needs and how we can work together to provide the best options and outcomes of our clients.

TWEB is focused not only on recipient customer service, but also with exceptional clinic support, communication and high quality outcomes. We have implemented these visits to allow the clinics the opportunity to talk with us in person and to establish one on one relationships with key staff members.

TWEB is unique in that we ship eggs to any clinic without exclusivity or clinic contracts. This means that clinics are not required to refer their patients to us. Rather, we are an option for their patients when they find the perfect donor match with us. We are confident enough in our large donor selection, our recipient/clinic support and in our outcomes to know that we will end up being their preferred egg bank.

The Texas Roadshow was a huge success for TWEB. We all know that "EVERYTHING IS BIGGER IN TEXAS" and after our roadshow, TWEB has high hopes to be bigger in Texas, too!

If you would like us to visit your clinic, please contact us directly. We would welcome the opportunity!

The World Egg Bank Takes "Eggs

the Caribbean, Central and South America. Recently, two areas in Florida have been added to this list. Potential donors that have traveled to these areas within the last 6 months, have had sex with someone that has visited these areas in the last 6 months, or has had a diagnosed Zika infection within the last 6 months are excluded from donation.

Prior infections of Zika do appear to provide immunity to Zika infections. A prior Zika infection protects one from a subsequent infection, but how long that protection lasts is unknown.

The World Egg Bank follows the current guidelines from the FDA and does not allow donors that have visited or lived in Zika areas to donate. As a recipient, it is important to not travel to Zika areas if you are pregnant or planning to get pregnant.

The CDC reports that the best way to protect you from Zika are:

- Wear long-sleeved shirts and long pants.
- Stay in places with air conditioning and use window and door screens to keep mosquitoes outside.
- Use Environmental Protection Agency (EPA)-registered insect repellents with one of the following active ingredients: DEET, picaridin, IR3535, oil of lemon eucalyptus, or para-menthane-diol. When used as directed, EPA-registered insect repellents are proven safe and effective, even for pregnant and breastfeeding

World Egg Bank Takes "Eggs Without Borders" to Finland

In July, The European Society of Human Reproduction and Embryology held its annual conference in Helsinki, Finland. It was attended by over 8,000 reproductive specialists worldwide. The World Egg Bank had an exhibit booth, and plenty of doctors, nurses, donor coordinators and embryologist to speak with.

Egg donation is very restrictive in many European countries. As The World Egg Bank complies with legislation for screening donors in all European countries, we can provide access to our donor eggs to couples seeking our assistance to conceive, without traveling abroad. We ship donor eggs directly to your fertility specialist. If their own countries greatly hinder or fully restrict the use of donor eggs, we have a location in London, UK, that infertile women can go to in order to have our eggs warmed, fertilized and transferred as embryos. There are many advantages to using our top quality donor eggs:

- A recipient can stay 'at home' with their own doctor
- A recipient can make the short and relatively inexpensive flight to London to receive our donor eggs
- You will receive the donors photos, and full application, complete with donors reported medical history
- You have the choice of an anonymous donor, or a donor who is willing to release her identity should the recipient or child chose to contact the donor in the future.
- You will have an unparalleled choice of egg donors to find a best match with your own family profile

We will be meeting with our Canadian colleagues in Toronto, Ontario at the Canadian Fertility and Andrology Society in a few weeks! We'll look forward to seeing you there!

A Family is Anchored in Relationships, Not Genes

*By: Diana Thomas
Founder & CEO,
The World Egg Bank*

I don't often share my personal experiences about infertility. After 20 years of talking to thousands of women who have or are going through infertility, I know there is no such thing as a typical experience that can be addressed with simple advice or direction. My own story clearly illuminates that! Every person enters my world of donor eggs at very different emotional stage in the process and each has a unique resolution based on their own financial resources, level of support from family or friends, knowledge of the 'science' behind egg donation, personal resilience, determination, physical stamina, strength of their partners (if they have one), and so on.

Having said that, I have seen common experiences and believe that in sharing some of my own story, I can help remove some barriers that we encounter and some we create for ourselves. From my own experiences, I have woven a philosophy into The World Egg Bank that speak to the needs of infertile women. It is the relationship that builds a family.

I was 25 years old and unable to conceive. It was in the mid-1980s when egg donation did not exist as an option. After 15 years of IUI's, clomid, laparoscopies (5), lab tests, 3 IVFs with my own eggs, and considerable debt, I ended this painful phase of my journey without a baby and with a diagnosis of "unexplained infertility." I was left with a pretty big 'empty nest' to say the least. I was going on 40 years old, had lived in two countries (Canada and the U.S.), was peaking in my 15 year career, traveled extensively, lost my father and a brother to cancer, bought/renovated 3 homes, and all of these experiences only strengthened my desire for a child. Some people are able to find resolve and comfort in their decision to be childless, I was not one of them. I tip my hat to people who can choose to be or remain childless, because I truly believe that is the right choice for them.
